Born in 1824, A.N. spent his entire adult career in the merchantile business. In 1845, at age 21, he formed a partnership with his father, and purchased the Astor House Hotel on W. Main Street, added a general store, and moved into the owner's apartment. In 1849 he married Ann E. Fuller from Oswego County, New York. He successfully managed and expanded the Astor House Hotel until the night of March 28, 1868 when the family was forced to flee the blazing building. Following the destruction of the Astor House he built this residence for his family and constructed a store on Main Street. At the time of his untimely death from a fatal fall from the roof of his home he was reportedly worth $300,000. The Taylors had three children, the oldest of which, Ada, married D. C. Young, who would also become a well known merchant in Smethport. (see D.C. Young Mansion 807 W. Main Street).
